

Director Responsibilities

As a member of the Board of Directors of the Association of Vermont Credit Unions, an elected director is expected to adhere to the following principles, common to similar positions in all cooperative and democratic organizations.

- 1. The highest standards of personal conduct are observed at all times. Maintain integrity, competency and cooperation at all times.
- 2. Make reasonable efforts to learn about the financial industry in general, and the Association and related organizations specifically, to increase skills in making and supporting appropriate policies and decisions.
- 3. Attend and participate in scheduled meetings and events regularly.
- 4. Encourage unity between member credit unions and their officials.
- 5. Avoid conflicts of interest regarding Association activities, services and programs, and do not promote or engage in any activity not in the best interests of the Association or its member credit unions.
- 6. Be committed to maintaining a strong membership organization.
- 7. Observe the different roles of management and the board.
- 8. Fully support the decisions and policies adopted by the Board, regardless of personal opinion.
- 9. Make every effort to provide credit unions and the Association with accurate, pertinent information and attempt to affirmatively correct any misinformation concerning credit unions or the Association.
- 10. Maintain confidentiality of the organization's business and exercise prudent discretion in disclosing information not yet made common knowledge.
